Special Risks Concerning Structured Investments

For a more comprehensive list of risk factors associated with each structured investment, please refer to the applicable disclosure documents. The applicable prospectus, prospectus supplement, pricing supplement or other offering document for a specific offering of structured investments sets forth the specific risks associated therewith, including possible loss of principal or any purchase price and exposure to the credit risk of the relevant issuer. Structured investments may not provide for any minimum repayment and thus may be riskier than other debt securities. There may not be a liquid market for structured investments, and they are generally designed to be held to maturity. Structured investments are subject to investment risk and any early repayment could result in a loss of principal investment. The return on a structured investment is linked to the performance of a particular market measure and therefore any investment will carry risks similar to an investment in the components of that market measure. Prices associated with the components of the market measure may change unpredictably, affecting the value of the market measure and thus the value of the particular structured investments; there may not be daily pricing, rather structured products are generally priced on a matrix, not net-asset value basis. Structured products are highly complex unsecured debt from investment banks and other financial issuers, and not homogeneous. Investing in a structured investment is not equivalent to investing directly in the components of the relevant market measure or the relevant market measure itself.

The market value of a structured investment may be influenced by many unpredictable factors, including market conditions affecting the underlying market measure components relevant to the specific structured investment. Other factors, including the actual or perceived creditworthiness of the issuer, interest rates and general economic, financial, political, regulatory or judicial events will affect the value of structured investments. Risks can include, but are not limited to issuer risks and for structured investments providing for periodic distributions, the risk of no distributions. A trading market for a particular series of structured investments may not develop. Affiliates of the issuers of structured investments and the broker-dealers distributing structured investments may engage in limited purchase and resale transactions. However, they are not required to do so and, if they engage in such transactions, they may stop at any time.

Unless otherwise stated, any pricing information in this Site is indicative only, is subject to change and is not an offer to deal. Where relevant, the price quoted is exclusive of tax and delivery costs and commissions. Any reference to the terms of executed transactions should be treated as preliminary.

Users accessing this Site must meet the definition of an "institutional account" as defined under FINRA rules and are capable of evaluating investment risks independently, both in general and with regard to any particular transaction(s) in structured investments as well as any investment strategies that are employed in connection with any structured investments purchased. Additionally, with regard to any indications of interest or orders placed with respect to structured investments each investor is exercising independent judgment and not relying on Capital Markets for investment advice, a recommendation, a determination of suitability or discretion of any kind.

You will not rely on any market commentary, sales literature, educational or marketing materials created or disseminated by Capital Markets for the purposes of determining suitability for any transaction(s) or investment strategy(ies). Neither the issuers involved in any particular series of structured investments nor any distributor thereof, including Capital Markets, are providing tax advice and nothing contained herein should be construed as such. Any discussion of U.S. tax matters contained herein is not intended or written to be used, should not and cannot be used, by any investor for the purpose of avoiding U. S. tax-related penalties.

This information is not a research publication. Any research summary will be identified as such and is subject to specific disclaimers associated with that report, if any. The issuers of structured investments featured herein, the distributors of such structured investments and any of their respective affiliates may trade for their own accounts in any of the securities of issuers mentioned herein or in related investments, and may also from time to time perform or solicit investment banking or other services for, or from, any entity mentioned herein.
