Raman Srivastava: If you think about what we're doing, every decision we make impacts the lives of a pensioner in the US or a postal worker in Japan or a retiree in Italy.

Sinead Colton: When we deliver the investment performance that we aim to for clients, we're really helping foundations or endowments invest in research or university facilities.

Ed Ryan: You feel that every day you're driving change, you're making something happen.

Renee LaRoche-Morris: I think we're really helping a tremendous amount of investors achieve their financial goals.

Jean Wynn: Every day coming into the company and thinking about what I can contribute. We play such an important role and we should all be proud of that.

Poorvi Shah: I get to give people opportunities to advance in their careers, and just grow as an individual.

Lee Stephens: We provide a lot of the financial infrastructure that makes the global capital markets work, that impacts the lives of every American, virtually of every citizen of any country in the world.

Renee: Watching the client succeed really makes you feel like they're part of your family, too. I'm Renee LaRoche-Morris and I'm invested.
