March 2019

Optimising performance, overseeing risk, ensuring compliance, and meeting investors' demands are all critical to the investments process.

And increasingly, investors are looking at how environmental, social and governance metrics can inform the oversight of assets.

That's why BNY Mellon is pleased to introduce an innovative and powerful new capability...ESG Analytics.

ESG Analytics is an extension of our Exposure and Structural Analysis product, and provides easy access to simplified but comprehensive information about how your portfolio is scoring against key ESG and sustainability metrics right at your fingertips.

At a glance data visualisations make it simple to monitor and report at the portfolio and security level.

Using your investments data, we overlay a rich set of ESG and other sustainability metrics for a comprehensive view of your portfolio's ESG exposure and scoring.

The equity and fixed income positions in your portfolio are scored based on an intuitive scale, of zero to one hundred - making it easy to understand how your investments are tracking against ESG measures.

BNY Mellon's service is unique. In addition to getting a view of environmental, social and governance performance - with each company evaluated on financially material information against similar companies in that sector.

You can also see how your portfolio is tracking on environmental considerations, human rights, labour rights and anti corruption.

These considerations can be an important part of your analysis, because they're the principles set forth by the United Nations Global Compact and supported by thousands of participants - including companies, investment managers and other organizations from around the world.
