Yves Lawson: Impact is synonymous with continuous improvement. How am I improving the lives of my clients, my customers, my boss, my family? And if I find ways to do that efficiently, then I've had impact, and I've been successful.

Dinesh Deo: BNY Mellon is in India for 12 years now. I want to leave a legacy that will build this organization to last for a century. And I think the foundation of that will be the culture, the high-performance culture that will enable. And I want to work towards that.

JI Kang: I believe that it is that people that makes the difference. Our people, including myself are very globally minded. We are relentlessly curious; very, very diverse in perspectives and backgrounds.

Nicole Fouron: What am I doing to make a change in the world? What is my company doing to make a change in the world?

Jessica Rigby: With 50,000 people across 35 countries, serving 100 markets, we have people who are willing and able and dedicated to making a difference to the communities that we live and work in.
